By CLARK C. HUDSON,
World's Capital Correspondent.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Nov. 5.—Thirty-six hours before the polls open to decide the most important contest that has taken place in state politics since Oklahoma became a state, the result rests "on the knees of the gods."

Hombastic statements from headquarters of J. C. Walton, reconstructionist democratic candidate for governor, have been issued from almost everybody connected with his campaign, claiming the election by majorities ranging from 60,000 to a million.

Mistake Somewhere.

Chairman Semans state, with emphasis that Bryan county, when there are but 8,000 voters in the entire county. Other estimates furnished by headquarters officials and sidewalk politicians give the majority as large enough to require weighing the contest in the answer to this, the constitutional democrats predict that it will be weighed and found wanting.

While the Waltonites have been minimizing the membership and influence of the constitutional democrats the fact remains that the latter have made a remarkable campaign. There is good reason to believe that they have a signed membership of at least fifty thousand men, all democrats with more or less influence in their respective communities, and nearly all of them will vote for John Fields.

Added to this influence, the democratic Women's Good Government league has a very strong membership among the women of the state. It is their moral force that has been working day and night to defeat Walton. It is their moral force that has been working day and night to defeat Walton. It is their moral force that has been working day and night to defeat Walton.

An illustration of the way the wind is blowing is found in the fact that the secretary to Mrs. Fite, vice chairman of the state democratic committee, went over to the democratic Women's Good Government club when she was virtually kicked out of the state headquarters, and has since been active for John Fields. Miss Pixie Mayes, who was Mrs. Fite's secretary, is a member of one of the most prominent families of the old Cherokee nation.

Pitched as Class Battle.

The appeal of the Walton directors has been made to arouse class prejudice. Their campaign has been pitched upon the theory that this is a class contest, and that a sort of revolution is in progress. Two letters, mailed out to farmers a few days ago are illustrative of this. Both are evidently the production of Pat Nagle, socialist leader, and calculated to arouse hatred and violence among the farmers. "Vicious though they are, they will have some effect in a campaign where prejudice is the chief corner stone."

27 Years Suspends; Editor
Changes His Views

KANSAS CITY, Nov. 5.—The Appeal to Reason, a weekly magazine publication at Girard, Kan., and which for 27 years has expounded socialism, will cease to exist after tomorrow's issue. It was announced here today by Mr. E. Haldeman-Julius, who for the last five years has published the periodical. The name and policy of the paper will be changed, he said.

The new name of the magazine will be the Haldeman-Julius Weekly, and its policy will be devoted to the advancement in historical, scientific and philosophical matters, the announcement stated.

Declaring his attitude toward the mass movements "has undergone a fundamental change," Haldeman-Julius declares in his statement giving reasons for the change in the paper's policy that its future policy would be "to educate, rather than agitate."

"I do believe humanity can be helped by institutional reforms," he stated. "I am an individualist, not a communist or collectivist."

By HARVEY E. RHODES

Tuesday will bring to a close what has without doubt been Oklahoma's most interesting political campaign, and simultaneously will mark the state's most momentous election—momentous because of the significant issues involved that must have a direct bearing on the state's economic condition for the next four years at least and on its political reputation in the sisterhood of states.

With only one more day to elapse before the election, the dominating topic of conversation on the streets, in hotel lobbies, private conferences and among street corner groups, is the question of the gubernatorial race.

Governor's Race Paramount.

Naturally, the gubernatorial race is paramount in all groups. As long as the campaign is in progress, the issue of the gubernatorial race is paramount in all groups. As long as the campaign is in progress, the issue of the gubernatorial race is paramount in all groups.

Chandler Is Confident.

Congressman T. A. (Bert) Chandler is confident of his election by at least five thousand and that his majority in Tulsa county will be extremely gratifying. Chandler was largely responsible for the recent bill which validated contested Indian titles in Tulsa, and replaced apprehensions in the breasts of property owners with security over their investments. The assured addition to Tulsa's portfolio is another project that reflects credit on Congressman Chandler.

These accomplishments are given by his headquarters as tangible and deserving reasons why he should be returned to congress, with the additional reason that he is an in-

DOORN, Holland, Nov. 5.—The former German emperor, once all highest of the empire, and Princess Hermine of Reuss, were married today at the House of Doorn, where Wilhelm abides in exile. This second venture was in strange contrast with that day in 1881 when, as crown prince, he wedded Augusta Victoria, daughter of Grand Duke Frederick of Schleswig-Holstein.

Several of the offsprings of that first union were present today to set the seal of family approval to the new alliance.

There were two ceremonies, a civil contract drawn up and signed by "Wilhelm, II," and "Hermine, Reuss," as they affixed their names. The second a religious ceremony, conducted by the former court chaplain, Doctor Vogel, according to the Lutheran rite.

The air of secrecy surrounding the entire affair has been well maintained throughout. The climax of the systematic mystification adopted by the household came when the bride's sister, Princess Ida, who resembles her, successfully passed herself off as the bride at the Amersfoort station last evening with an array of cashmere cars, whereas Princess Hermine left the train at Apeldoorn, half an hour earlier, and drove to the castle unobserved, those within the place making much of this as a huge joke.

He recalled that the same text had served at the golden wedding of William I, and at the bridegroom's own silver wedding. "The bride," said he, "has left the fatherland and friends to unite her life with that of his majesty, whose faith has sustained him in circumstances which would have driven others to despair."

As an evidence of faith he pointed out that the "bride" conducted religious services on every Lord's day in his home. He paid tribute to the virtues of the late empress and Princess Hermine's former husband, referring to the "bride" as the ideal of German womanhood.

"Love each other as God loves you," he admonished, "and you shall prevail over all evil reports."

Then followed the reading of the marriage service. Rings were exchanged, and the hymns, "So Nimm Den Meine Hande" and "Herrn Mein Seelen" were rendered.

A brief official communication issued later announced the civil and religious solemnities and mentioned the numbers of guests as 28. Prince Henry of Prussia, as senior member of the family, spoke a few cordial words, to which there was no response.

In the Wake of the Oil Fields Cyclone

The above pictures, the first to be published of the terrible tornado which swept through the Cushing oil field late Saturday afternoon, give a graphic portrayal of the great force of the storm and the terrible havoc that it wrought. The pictures were taken early Sunday morning and are from every section of the devastated area.

No. 1. What the twisted left of the Jennings home where an entire family was killed. The car in the background was in a garage which had the same fate as the house. The house was made into kindling wood, was strewn along the ground for a half mile.

No. 2. Wreck of the home of William Simmons. All of the family was in town at the time of the storm. The family returned to the wreck of their home Sunday morning. They are shown in the picture.

All Christian Women, That John Fields Should Be Elected to Avoid Calamity

Special to the World.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Nov. 5.—The Democratic Women's Good Government Club has more than seventy thousand members. Thousands of others who stand for the preservation of the democratic party in the future will vote for John Fields. Please see that all votes in your county are cast and honestly counted. This will insure victory.

(Signed) "Executive Committee Democratic Women's Good Government Club."

"We have tried to get the truth to the good Christian women of the state," said one of the club officials tonight, "and we believe that our effort has not been in vain. If the good women of the state could only know, there would be no doubt of the result, and we feel that enough of them know to make the defeat of Walton certain. His election would be a humiliating calamity."

OKLAHOMA CITY, Nov. 5.—Twice kidnaped, 4-year-old Jack Karam, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Karam, was returned here tonight from Missouri. The child, who was taken from his mother, Mrs. Karam, and placed in the arms of a local attorney in the Illinois town, and that she boarded a train for the north Thursday and "stole him away."

O. T. Rhine, charged with abduction of the child and serving a 60-day jail sentence for contempt since he failed to produce Jack in court, was given until tomorrow morning to enter his plea when arraigned last Wednesday. He fought the contempt sentence in two actions brought in the state criminal court of appeals, one in the state supreme court and one in the United States district court, but failed to win his liberty.

DRUMRIGHT, Nov. 5.—The storm-stricken area of the Cushing oil field breathed easier today, when a complete check-up on the havoc wrought by the tornado Saturday evening, showed that only a person had been killed and 30 injured. At midnight Saturday the known death toll was five and it was feared that it might on much greater because of the intensity of the storm.

The dead are:

Joe Jennings, oil field blacksmith employed on the Roxana L. Yarhola lease, a mile and a half south-east of here; his wife and 14-year-old boy.

Will Dodson, 15, who lived in a house adjoining that of the Jennings family.

Wesley Walton, rancher, who lived two miles south of Mannford.

Injured list incomplete.

While the total number of persons who were hurt in the storm is believed to be 30, those who have been found and identified is far less than this. Few of the injured people were brought to the Drumright hospital. Most of those who were hurt were given medical aid in the field and an accurate check on the total number who were hurt is made exceedingly difficult.

Known cases of injured follow:

John Hildebrand, lease foreman for the Prairie Oil & Gas Co., lease three miles north of Shamrock, his wife and 13-year-old daughter, Hazel. All were bruised and slightly injured.

Mrs. Tom McNeese, two ribs broken and badly bruised when her house on the Pure Oil company lease near here, was blown against a boiler house nearby. Her 17-year-old son was severely bruised.

Mrs. Everett Fridley, on the Pure Oil lease, Emma L. Richard, was badly cut and bruised when her 3-month-old baby when the house burst as it dropped to ground after being carried in the air for 200 feet. She was in the house stopped at 5:55 o'clock.

H. R. Gimney, employee of the Prairie Oil & Gas Co., received two broken ribs and severe bruises, when he was picked up by the wind and hurled several feet. He was the only one of 25 persons on the lease who were injured, the others having reached a storm cellar.

Frank Hurst and his wife, Fannie Hurst, who owned a store on the Tidal Varhola lease, were slightly injured when the wind crushed the store building as if it were an egg-shell.

Cel Fugate, rancher, living two miles southwest of Mannford, father of Fred Fugate, who was killed, and his wife, were blown against a boiler house and severely injured. He is expected to recover.

Path Through Leases.

Although the storm did not take as much as was feared, the oil companies operating leases traversed by the tornado suffered heavily. The twister left a path of destruction varying in width from 300 feet to 300 yards across 14 of the richest leases in this section.

Scores of oil derricks were toppled to the ground and completely demolished and many houses were twisted into piles of kindling wood. Storage tanks and pump-houses also felt the heavy hand of the storm.

Superintendents of the several oil companies operating in this section estimated the total damage including property destruction and loss of production at $1,800,000. The companies which suffered most heavily are the Tidal Oil company, the Prairie Oil & Gas Co., the Roxana Oil company and the Pure Oil company. Other companies affected were the Southern Oil corporation, the Texas company, the Grice Oil company, the Magnolia Oil company.

To Men and Women Voters of Tulsa and Tulsa County.

John Alexander, Tulsa, candidate for governor, intimates for the past 23 years, it is my opinion that no citizen of Oklahoma could be so qualified for governor as I am better qualified in every way than John Fields. Notwithstanding the fact that his life has been sacrificed from the time of his birth in Pennsylvania until his removal to Oklahoma, where he has been prominent in the development of this great state for the past 23 years, nothing has been found that impeaches his loyalty, his ability and his patriotism as an Oklahoma-American citizen.
